SATURDAY, MARCH 22, 1873.

THE GENEVA ARBITRATION AGAIN. - A long and spirited debate took place in the British House of Commons last night, upon a motion for an address to the Crown, asking that the Government be instructed to dissent from the several international rules laid down by the Geneva Arbitration. It was emphatically disclaimed that the motion was made with any party object. It was opposed on the grounds that it really would be a vote of censure on the Arbitrators, who the country, through Parliament, have formally thanked for their services, and it would look as if England was smarting under having to pay the award. It supporters declared that "the rules never had held water," and the best thing that could be done was to ask the United States to withdraw them, and substitute others, which, in the event of war, would make the new treaty intolerable. In conclusion Mr. Gladstone concurred with Disraeli that the United States and Great Britain should have an early understanding as to the rules, and jointly submit them to other Powers. He assured the House that the opinion of the government was unchanged, and that the matter would not be neglected. The motion was then withdrawo.

STEAM ON CANALS. - The official report of Professor D. M. Greene, engineer to the Board of Commissioners having in charge the matter of the employment of steam in propelling and towing vessels on the canals of New York, has been submitted to the Legislature. The New York World says that the report embraces the following important points, which should not fail to receive the attention of all who are interested in the cheap and rapid transportation of merchandise between the seaboard and the great West: (1) The practicability of substituting steam for animal power on the canals is demonstrated; (2) an average speed of three miles per hour, including lockages, may be attained, which would carry a boat from Buffalo to Albany in five days instead of ten or twelve days; (3) by the substitution of steam, the tonage of the canal may and employments, we learn, have already been be largely increased; (4) a saving of 50 per provided for them." cent., exclusive of tolls, may be made in the cost of transportation by the substitution of steam for animal power; and (5), all things considered, the cheapest and most convenient mode of employing steam is in boats carrying their own machinery, and not in the use of tow-

The House of Representatives at the last session of Congress passed a bill directing "the Secretary of War to deliver to the Society of the Army of the Cumberland, eighty-eight pieces of condemned bronze cannon, if the same can be spared without serious detriment to the service, to aid in the erection of an equestrian statue to the memory of Major General George H. The Lexington Gazette, speaking of this, says: - "Who would have supposed that a majority of the 42nd Congress would have donated cannon to make an Equestrian Statue to an original Secessionist! Yet so it is."

Another arrest was made yesterday, in Ha-

WOMAN IN AGRICULTURE. - The New York Times says:-There is much work about the farm which no man can do so well, which nature seems especially to have intended for the skillful and delicate touch and quick perception of woman; hence, any effort to draw her from that work has been met with a corresponding deterioration of the product and the fact forced into prominence that nothing was needed but simply such appliances as might lighten labor but still leave all to be guided by her skill. The port. special work of woman in agriculture should be the care of the dairy, the general direction and the leighter labor of the garden, the poultryyard and its varied fowls, the bees, and her pleasure, the flowers. These, except the dairy may be called the little things of the farm, yet in them may be stored many dollars of profit or many a luxury which the hard-wrought grain will not supply. No man can ever be so successful in raising chickens, none attend so pointedly to the wants of the busy insects who give the honey, none know so well where and how the varied vegetables of the kitchen garden should be grown.

HERESY IN THE TEA-POT .- The following notes on the subject of tea making were sent us by a lady who has kept house for for:y-five years and has zealously studied and practiced the art of making good tea and coffee. Her opinions it certain that she knows how to make good tea:

"I oppose the so often vaunted rules, which direct us to put our tea-leaves in the pot, and after pouring boiling water over them, to pour the tea immediately into the cups. This practice may still do in China or Russia, where they use none but the finest qualities of teas, and it might possibly have answered in this country before the art of adulteration was understood so well. The idea which is so often advancedthat it spoils breakfast-tea to let it boil or steep any length of time after the boiling water is poured on it, is a most erroneous one. I don't approve of stewing tea, but I do not consider breakfast-tea (no matter how fine its quality) that has not had 7 or 8 minutes' slow boiling, to be fit for use." - Scribner's . or April.

SUICIDE FOR LOVE. - Mr. Charles Renshaw, a well-to-do farmer, a bachelor about 45 years old, who resided in Montgomery county, Md., on the old Frederick road, about six miles northwest of Georgetown, committed suicide on Thursday by hanging himself in an outbuilding. It is reported that he was engaged to be married to a young lady of that neighborhood, and that a few days since he received a note from her stating that she had changed her mind, and that the notice so affected him that he has been in a desponding state of mind ever since receiving it; but nothing was known of his purpose until he was found hanging by the neck in his barn from a cross-beam. He had tied the rope-a plough line-over the beam and around his neck and jumped from a barrel. - Washington Star.
